1: Anonymous. The Baltic States. The Royal Institute of International Affairs. London: Oxford University Press, 1938.

Pp. 194; 2 appendices; 1 folded map; errata.

Yale: Bw63.23

[This is an extensive study of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, encompassing their internal development and their external relations from the 12th to the 20th century. (1937) The author, at length, discusses their roles during World War I, their emergence as independent states, their successive foreign occupations and foreign relations, the Peace Treaties, their internal consolidation, constitutional development, agrarian reform, minority problems, religious denominations, education, and political parties, as well as changes in regimes through 1937. He also devotes large sections to their economies, their foreign trade and balance of payments, and their financial systems during the periods 1919-30 and 1930-1937. The economic and financial crisis of 1931 is discussed in some detail. One entire chapter covers Lithuania's disputes over Vilna and the Memel territory, with economic, historical and sociological background information on both. --Analyst]

Field date: none
Analyst: Angelica Baumann

Evaluation: Unknown-4
Processed in 1955

2: Anonymous. Wages in the Baltic Countries. Monthly Labor Review, Vol. 49, No. 2, pp. 413-427. Washington, D.C.: United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, August, 1939.

Yale: Adv60. A7. v. 49

[Written from the point of view of the industries in which workers are employed, this source presents a concise summary, including tables, of the average wages and working hours in Estonia, Finland, and Latvia. Although the entire source is filed in category 116, RB1 Baltic Countries, information is categorized for and appears in the pertinent country files--Analyst]

Field date: none
Analyst: Cory Berman

Evaluation: Government Official-4, 5
Processed in 1955

3: Washington, Walter S. and Macgowan, Basil F. Labor Conditions in the Baltic States. Monthly Labor Review, Vol. 51, No. 3, pp. 591-592. Washington, D. C.: Bureau of Labor Statistics, 1940.

Yale: Ndv60. A7. V. 51

[This short article deals with labor legislation and the stricter control exerted over workers in Latvia and Lithuania during the year 1940. Analyst]

Field date: none
Analyst: C. Harvey

Evaluation: Government Official-4, 5
Processed in 1955